CHICKENS GALORE
AT MOLINE SHOW

More Than 1,200 Birds Will Be Exhibited in Plow City Under Auspices of Tri-City Association.

The third annual show of the Mississippi Valley Fanciers' association, which this year may be seen at the Moline Turner hall from Nov. 22 to 26, inclusive, should prove the largest poultry and pet-stock exhibition ever assembled under one roof in Moline. At a meeting of the directors last evening the secretary was authorized to place an order with the Empire Cooping company for coops to accommodate 1,200 birds. Expectations are that 1,200 chickens and other fowl will be on display in Moline. Inquiries are coming in daily from poultry breeders in all parts of the middlewest and many are making reservations for exhibits.

Lack of floor space will prove a handicap to the association and it may be necessary in event the upstairs is inadequate, to place some of the displays downstairs.

It is announced that the prize lists are now ready for distribution. Cash premiums in the sum of several hundred dollars will be awarded to the owners of winning birds.

In addition there are medals, cups and merchandise prizes offered by Moline merchants.

Four pens of thoroughbred birds will be given away, one each evening except the first. Donors are H. B. Busch of Davenport, William Karetens of Moline, A. H. Einfield of Moline, and Louis Mixer of Moline.

Theater

AT THE ILLINOIS.

The Illinois theatre, under the direction of the Metropolitan Amusement company, has secured George Beban in "The Alien" as its opening attraction for next Sunday and Monday. The pictured drama is developed from the vaudeville sketch, "The Sign of the Rose," in which Mr. Beban appeared so successfully. The film was produced under the direction of Thomas H. Ince and the story is told in nine parts. It has been heralded as one of the most impressive photo plays of the year and has but lately been featured throughout the eastern and middle western cities, where it won universal approval. The story is that of Pietro Massena, a poor but respectable Italian, who through a chain of circumstances is suspected of being a kidnapper because he purchased roses in a florist shop, which is made the rendezvous for the criminals. The Italian's daughter had been killed by an automobile and he is released only in time to attend her funeral. There are thrills and tears in the story which abounds with sentiment. Thelma Satter, a 6-year-old actress, appears in an important role and Mr. Beban is assisted by Blanche Schwed and William Gillespie. Clever contrasts between the homes of the rich and the poor, human scenes between the "alien" and his little Ross and the pathetic finish give the film a sentimental appeal that has evoked unanimous applause. As the opening attraction of the Illinois it promises to draw crowds to the picture house, which will be devoted to exclusive showing of feature films. Nothing has been overlooked by Manager Harry Solini in the arrangement of the theatre and the decorations are equal to those of the finest motion picture theatres in the middle west. A new Barcola, especially adapted for interpretative playing of film music, has been installed in the theatre and will be used at the opening matinee.

AT THE EMPIRE.

If you have witnessed both bills, you'll admit that Manager Charles Berkell has surpassed the show offered the first part of feature week at the Empire by the one that opened yesterday. It would seem that he had reached the limit in vaudeville perfection. Here are the acts as they appear:

Adams and Gilbert—They sing and dance, excelling in the latter. After a song number the performers are given a full stage scene and they offer some artistic and sensational terpsichorean evolutions. An act of class.

Yvonne—She plays a large accordion. Aside from her artistic manipulation of the instrument, she sings a bit and swings herself gracefully across the stage to the time of her musical numbers.

Burke and Burke—They promise "Eighteen Minutes in the Laugh Factory." You get the full 18, with some to spare. Burke and Burke are the laughing hit of the bill. Burke appears as a messenger boy. He delivers a telegram to the apartments of a young woman who has abundant means, but lacks a wooer. The messenger gets into a quarrel with her in attempting to collect the charges for his service. You can't describe Burke and Burke's work, especially the part played by the male member of the duo. Take this as a straight tip: You will see nothing funnier in a season of the theatregoing.

Bill Foster—Bill has a turn that he calls "Who's Who." Bill has a partner, the latter appearing as the orchestra drummer when the sketch opens. Both have good singing voices, and they present a line of comedy that gets better the longer they linger on the stage.

Ton Chin Troupe—Here are six Chinese, who furnish 15 minutes of thrills. This is one of the few Chinese troupes appearing in vaudeville. They have an unusual act, one worth seeing.

AT THE COLUMBIA.

Patriotic thrills are given patrons of the Columbia theatre, Davenport, by Colonel J. A. Patton's "Old Soldier

The Service Store

We have a business creed. We believe that no store can grow unless it is helping those who buy there.

We believe that any store that is bent on just "getting the money," regardless of whether the customer gets the value or not, cannot last. We want to last.

Therefore, our goods are those which give permanent satisfaction to our customers. They are the goods of quality and reputation. They are the goods which repay many times over any slight additional cost.
